Harold Vreeman - President

I am more than just an entrepreneur; I am also a devoted husband and father of three wonderful children. My personal motto is simple yet powerful: "Children are our future."

As president of the SKKI Foundation, I am committed to helping children develop into confident, independent individuals. I believe that self-reliance, personal growth and self-worth are essential building blocks for a successful and fulfilling life. Above all, I believe it is our responsibility to recognise and nurture the unique talents of every child.

While many of us take life's basic necessities for granted, I realise that not everyone has the same opportunities. That is why I am committed to creating equal opportunities and supporting those who need it most.

Together with the Board, I help lead SKKI's mission to ensure that every child has the opportunity to be heard, to develop their full potential and to build a brighter future.

Peter den Uil - Treasurer

I am the proud father of two healthy daughters and a proud grandfather. Professionally, I work as an accountant, supporting my clients with financial and tax-related matters so they can focus on what matters most.

To build a future, however, people first need life's basic essentials: a safe place to live, sufficient nutritious food and access to education. Sadly, these basic needs are still far from guaranteed in many parts of the world.

That is why I contribute as Treasurer of SKKI. In 2007, I visited Indonesia to experience the situation firsthand. Seeing the circumstances with my own eyes strengthened my commitment to improving the lives of children and their caregivers in the children's homes we support.

Peter Klop - Secretary

For many years I worked in a variety of roles within education. Four years ago, I transitioned into youth care, where I support young people who are no longer able, willing or allowed to attend school, helping them regain direction in their lives.

This connects closely with the work of SKKI. It is all about giving children opportunities so they can build an independent future.

The work of SKKI truly makes a difference. Our focus is not on short-term solutions but on lasting impact. While previous investments mainly focused on facilities and materials, we increasingly invest in education and personal development for young people living in children's homes.

Our organisation may be small, but the difference we make is significant.

I am an educational psychologist and have spent most of my career working in education, where I train and coach both teachers and students.

Since 2011, I have been a member of the SKKI Board. My passion lies in improving the educational and developmental environment within the children's homes we support.

I believe it is important to remain closely connected to the projects on the ground. Over the years, I have regularly travelled to Indonesia at my own expense to visit the children's homes, enabling me to better assess where our efforts can make the greatest difference for the children.

After many years working in the banking sector, I returned to my original vocation and now work as a substitute primary school teacher.

Working with children has always been a central theme throughout my life, both professionally and through volunteer work.

During my visit to Indonesia, I realised even more deeply that clean water, nutritious food, education and a safe place to live cannot be taken for granted.

Through my work with SKKI, I hope to help children who have had a difficult start in life move towards a brighter future. We always work closely with local partners, carefully assessing what is needed and ensuring that every contribution directly benefits the children.

In 2024, I returned to Indonesia for the third time. Together with my partner and our two children (aged six and eight), I spent four wonderful months travelling through the country while continuing my search for my own roots.

I was once one of those children myself. I grew up in a children's home before being adopted. Although I still haven't discovered exactly where I come from, I have found peace with that.

During this journey, I visited a children's home for the very first time. It was an emotional experience. Looking at those children, I realised that my own life had started in much the same way.

When I returned to the Netherlands, one thing became clear to me: life has given me so many opportunities, while many others were left behind. It was time to give something back.

That is how SKKI and I found each other. Together, we are committed to creating opportunities for children in Indonesia who began life without the chances every child deserves.

In April 2025, I visited Indonesia for the first time. The people, the culture and the country made a profound impression on me.

During that trip, I had the opportunity to spend time talking with the young people living in the children's homes. Because of my age and my open and empathetic nature, I was able to connect with them on a personal level.

Those conversations—and especially what I saw in their eyes—deeply moved me. They made me realise that I wanted to dedicate myself to these children.

Not by deciding what we believe is best for them, but by listening carefully to what they know they need to build a better future.
